ABOUT WANTEDDESDIGN

WantedDesign is a platform dedicated to promoting design and fostering the international creative community at large.

Founded in New York City in 2011 by Odile Hainaut and Claire Pijoulat, WantedDesign has established itself as a constant and staunch supporter of U.S. and international design through its communication channels and year-long programming, including promoting events, conversations, and partners.

Its yearly programming aims to nurture New York City's design dialogue. WantedDesign Manhattan is taking place with the International Contemporary Furniture Fair (ICFF), in conjunction with NYCxDESIGN, the New York design Festival.

ABOUT LOOK BOOK AT WANTEDDESIGN MANHATTAN

WantedDesign launched Look Book in 2018 as a dedicated program for high-end North American designers, makers and entrepreneurs to introduce their work to Interior Designers and Architects. With a year-long communication campaign and serving as an in-person portfolio in May, Look Book allows members of the A&D community to source original, customizable design and beautifully-crafted products for their next projects. Look Book is presented this year with media partner Dezeen and the support of Turf.

We invite you to discover the 48 studios based in Canada, USA and Mexico part of Look Book 2023, all exhibiting at WantedDesign Manhattan with ICFF, from May 21 to 23, 2023 at the Javits Center.

Editions 8888 emerges from the darkness. Guided by the vision of its founder Jean-Michel Gadoua, the studio aims to develop collections that reject contemporary priorities and adopt the posture of discomfort, espousing a dark and daring aesthetic that draws heavily on counterculture. The philosophy behind Editions 8888 is illustrated by their coined term Brutaluxe™, a deep desire to celebrate raw materials and spontaneous gestures that is the antidote to industrial and impersonal manufacturing: it is about the poetry of imperfection.

Anony is a lighting and product design studio founded by Christian Lo. Lo’s refined design aesthetic belies the complexities she considers as part of her creative process: Her interest in utilizing the latest technology and manufacturing processes is combined with an honest and timeless approach to a product’s life cycle, judicious use of materials, minimal manufacturing, and ease of use. Through this philosophy, Anony hopes to create products that produce an emotional response similar to the appreciation felt for the utilitarian, well-designed objects of the past.

Ayumiya is the creative home for two sisters, Ayumi and Miya. The “-ya” in Ayumiya translates to “dwelling,” a place where object, space, and experience are brought together. Ayumiya carries a core ethos: to listen to the material first.

A new series celebrates kozo fiber in different moments of its abilities. When a human made structure intrudes on wildness, wildness emerges to showcase its strength. This fleeting moment is a pause before the overgrowth of the wildness and overtake of the intruding structure.

Bowen Liu Studio
Brooklyn, New York, USA

Bowen Liu Studio is an award-winning furniture design and research studio that creates artistic furniture collections inspired by life experiences immersed with local cultures. The studio’s designs strive to provide a peaceful living experience and enhance the conditions and ambiance of the contemporary living experience. The Helle Collection 2023 Edition is an extension of the collection the studio exhibited in 2021. Inspired by Bowen’s many sailing trips to the Long Island, the collection is named after the Hell Gate Bridge in New York’s East River and celebrates the unique view of the bridge as seen from the water through pieces crafted for the living room.

Caleb Ferris creates lovable designs that are a unique blend of the strange and the familiar. He draws inspiration from everyday objects, such as the ruffled curves of noodles, the tempting glint of fishing lures, and the bounce of inflated cartoons. Caleb’s creative process involves abstracting and repurposing three-dimensional forms to infuse each piece with its own distinct personality. Through his work, he invites viewers to appreciate the unconventional beauty that surrounds us and encourages us to be present and receptive to it.

After launching its first collection in 2022, Concrete Poetics is back with a series of hand-cast cement furniture and accessories, fabricated in small batches in Bushwick, Brooklyn.

Informed by nature, Concrete Poetics fuses technology and craft to explore the material and formulate new handmade processes. At the core of the collection is the alchemy between the innate raw and brutal character of the material, the idiosyncrasies of the handcrafted forms, and the purposefully slow casting methods used in the process of designing organic and intriguing shapes suitable for production. This combination of elements creates visually stimulating pieces that embrace the irregularities that make each one exceptional.

Daniel Shapiro's design practice creates sculptural lighting and furniture objects from stoneware that has been hand-built in his St. Louis, Missouri studio. Each piece in the collection challenges the conventions of the material while playing with the concepts of control and chaos—his work is all about the wild lines that come together to create a unified vision. Daniel has intentionally designed his process so that no two pieces that leave his studio can ever be the same and numbers each piece to reinforce this concept.

Dumais Made is a ceramics studio in Litchfield, Connecticut, specializing in handmade lighting and objects. Drawing from the straightforward simplicity of modernist sculpture, their pieces are constructed from slabs that allow for the clean, graphic shapes they tend towards. Glazed in a muted, natural palette, their work reflects the textures and contrasts found in their surroundings – the rough softness of lichen, the layers of peeling bark on a plane tree. A balance of form and function, they are pieces meant to be lived with, revealing their texture and character over time.

Elish Warlop Design Studio is a multidisciplinary design firm in Brooklyn specializing in lighting and furniture objects. With a background in architecture and construction, Elish uses her unique perspective to merge creativity and design with construction and experimentation. The work blurs the lines between art and design, while having a practical application as it creates light or divides space. Each piece starts as an experiment in the shop where delicate scale models and prototypes are created. As they develop, the studio partners with skilled artisans throughout the US to create objects of the highest quality using materials chosen for their ability to stand the test of time: wood, metal, and ceramic are finished to highlight their natural qualities and allow them to age over time.

Erin Lorek
Brooklyn, New York, USA

Lighting designer Erin Lorek explores the materiality of light through experimental means. Her first collection, Iron + Glass, is a result of her time spent in the mountains of North Carolina pouring hot glass onto handcrafted iron plates. Imbued with the flaws of the metal that created them, these lenses are presented simply and without fuss. The collection is defined by the clean geometry of circles and lines allowing the scale, and therefore the drama, to be highlighted in any space.

Sound design makes happier people

Turf is a proud supporter of the happy people and upcoming design talent featured in the Look Book program.
When people think about design in North America, they usually start from the context of city or nation – even state or province. Usually this is how galleries and exhibitions are laid out, so when a program tries to break down these barriers and incorporate the whole continent, it’s truly exciting. Dezeen is committed to providing an international showcase for designers who, despite different cultural contexts, face similar problems in the 21st century. In Look Book, we have found a similar commitment. Here, bright minds from all across the continent will show their work in New York City and in doing so open up new avenues for collaboration and experimentation. Not only does the program bring designers to the city, it reaches out. I’m confident that the conversations and interchange we seek through this program will continue this Spring at the Javits Center.
